Engr. Jane G. Rotoni, PPA Statistical Analyst, conducted the field visit to the LGUs, particularly the Business Permit and Licensing Office (BPLO), guided the them on how to fill out the forms properly and what are the exact data needed in estimating the economic performance of the province. This activity aims to avoid errors, sending back data files, and fast-tracking the data submission of the LGU.

The compilation of PPA makes use of and depends largely on data inputs and other relevant information from government agencies and institutions, private establishments, industry associations, and households. Thus, the data that go into the compilation and analysis are crucial for timely, reliable, and accurate statistics. These would not be possible without the support of our stakeholders in the provision of data.

This year, PSA's vision is to institutionalize the compilation of PPA in the 17 regions in the country, covering all provinces, highly urbanized cities, and cities of the National Capital Region.
